

Mister Apothecary... I'm glad... you're okay...

...Res-zurre-san?

There's one other thing I have to say, but it's best that I tell it to Reszurre alone...

She woke up already, so just go to her.

Before the surgery, we decided that I would be the one to talk to Reszurre about the necessity of it. In the meantime, Adam said he would search for spare limbs that looked the right size in his collection. I do have to wonder how likely he is to find something fitting, though...

...And that's how things stand... I don't have any other solutions...

It's... okay...
I trust you...
Mister Apothecary...

As she said that, her shoulders were visibly trembling. I'm sure hearing all this from me, some human that she hardly even knows, is tough, yet she faced this cruel challenge head on. I felt it when I first saw her, but her spirit really is strong. She said she trusts me, so I have to do everything in my power not to betray that.

